

Biblical World View Resources

Search the Powell Library catalog for the items listed below and additional sources of information about a biblical world view. The section concerning LC Subject Headings will also assist you in finding resources dealing with worldviews in general or as related to other fields of study.

Library of Congress Subject Headings (LCSH):

Using the Powell Library Catalog, select the Subject tab and search your topic or use the Basic Search mode, type the heading and select Subject (left anchored). Use these LC Subject Headings to help you get started:

Apologetics	Culture	Internationalism
Christianity and culture	Ethics	Knowledge, Theory of (Religion)
Christianity and the arts	Evangelicalism	Philosophy and religion
Church and the world	Faith and reason	Popular culture

Floating Subdivision (can be added to any major subject heading):

EXAMPLES: Economics – Forecasting; Education – Religious aspects – Christianity

- Forecasting; or --Forecast (better still truncate it like this: forecast?)*
- Globalization*
- Mondialisation* (See also mondialization as a keyword) – (def. = the increase of contact between countries, cultures, etc.)
- Religious aspects --Christianity
- Social aspects
- Trends
- Twenty-first Century --forecasting

* Try these also as keywords along with your main topic

Don't use "biblical world view" or even "world view" as a Subject because these are not LC Subject Headings. However, searching both as keywords will provide a good list of related titles. You will pick up a few additional records by searching "worldview" as a single word, but more records will be retrieved by searching it as a phrase. When you do find related records identify the subject headings associated with them and search these for additional resources. When using WorldCat (see below), look in the "Descriptors" or "Identifiers" fields for related terminology.

For an extensive search of resources use WorldCat. WorldCat is the combined catalogs of libraries worldwide with over 95M records. With it can be found all of the materials cataloged by OCLC member libraries including: books, manuscripts, websites and internet resources, musical scores, journals and magazines, sound recordings, papers, video recordings and anything else a library might include in its collection. WorldCat can be accessed via the library Web site (www.masters.edu/library) under Databases/Indexes. It is also a public Web site and can be accessed at www.worldcat.org.

Databases and Indexes

To find articles and other kinds of research documents online indexing tools are best. Be sure to read the "About", Info icons, "Help" menus and scan the search screen for available limiting options and search functions to make your research efforts as efficient and as effective as possible.

The Databases/Indexes page on the library Web site includes all periodical indexes as well as other subscription based electronic research tools. To access all of these online research tools select Databases/Indexes from the library main menu. If known, type the name or acronym of the database or index in the free-text box. If a specific database is not known, use the A-Z list to peruse all that are available or use the Topic/Type Matrix to identify appropriate databases and indexes to meet the specific research need (i.e. selecting the Topic: Religion and the Type: Articles will give you a list of all the indexes that provide citations, abstracts and/or full-text to articles related to religious studies).

Of particular use on any subject are: Academic Search (EBSCO), Encyclopaedia Britannica Online, Essay & General Literature (FirstSearch), Opposing Viewpoints Resource Center (OVRC), Oxford English Dictionary Online (OED), Periodical Abstracts (FirstSearch), ProQuest Research Library, SIRS Researcher (FirstSearch), WilsonSelectPlus (FirstSearch), WorldCat (FirstSearch).
