Tuition and Fees

The Master's University strives to offer students a Christ-centered education within the financial reach of all. We endeavor to keep costs as low as possible, and consequently, our tuition is among the most economical for a private university. When calculating university costs, be sure to consider the total cost. Consider items like books and supplies, transportation, and personal spending money. While these amounts vary with each student, it can raise the total cost of education above the published tuition and room and board amounts. Fortunately, when computing a student's financial need, we take all these costs into consideration.

DEPARTMENT OF BIBLICAL COUNSELING GRADUATE STUDIES - Policy Changes

Program Format (Residential, Distance, Online)

The Master of Arts in Biblical Counseling program recommends students take classes in person on campus as much as possible to ensure the highest quality of instruction and interaction. Students may attend classes on campus during the fall, spring, and summer semesters. Classes offered as part of our Summer Intensive Program (SIP) begin in May, extend for 16-weeks as normal, and conclude at the end of the summer semester in August. Students complete coursework for SIP classes throughout the semester remotely, turn in their work online and attend once week of lectures for each class in campus in person during the second or third week of July. Again, all summer classes start in May at a distance and require coursework to be completed prior to coming on campus in July for in-person lectures. These condensed or intensive lectures allow students living far away to attend classes in-person and receive the greatest benefit from the learning experience. To receive credit for SIP classes, students must successfully complete all the assigned coursework beginning in May and ending in August and attend in person all the class lectures for one week in July. Due to the intensive nature of the SIP lecture component, students must attend every SIP lecture and missing one SIP lecture will result in them not passing the class and be required to retake it.

The MABC Online program is managed by the Department of Biblical Counseling – Graduate Studies. MABC students are not required to attend classes in-person on campus unless the only modality in which a class is offered in a given semester is on campus. However, some online classes require students attend periodic remote meetings or discipleship labs conducted synchronously (live online) with their advisors, instructors, and classmates throughout the semester, depending on the course requirements and schedule. Students who enroll in the online outline class will be required to present their capstone thesis research project in person to the leadership of their local church. We prioritize personal interaction with our students, and due to the nature of the MABC program in which believers are trained to counsel themselves and other believers biblically, evaluating personal interaction, and building relationships with our students throughout the program is essential.

Continuing Education

MABC students are considered active if they continue taking classes in consecutive fall and spring semesters (summer semesters are optional) and they are considered inactive if they do not take at least one class per fall and spring semester. They will also be considered inactive if they do not take classes for three semesters total for the duration of their studies in the program, even if these semesters are not consecutive. Students will be required to enroll in a continuing education course and will be charged a continuing education fee for each required semester they do not take at least one class. Students may only utilize this continuing education option for three semesters total for the duration of their studies in the program. If students are unable to take classes for a fourth semester (total) they will be considered inactive as of the beginning of the next semester. Students who become inactive must reapply to return to the program and are subject to any applicable fees and policies.

Program Length

To successfully graduate from the MABC program, students must earn a 'C' or higher in every required class (including the elective course). Students must complete their studies within 6 academic years which is comprised of 6 fall, and 6 spring semesters (12 fall and spring semesters total). Students who choose to take most of their courses in person during our summer program will still be required to take at a least one course each fall and spring semester. A semester is added to the total even if the student does not take a class in a semester. For re-admit students, their time in the program resets to zero when they return to the program after having become inactive.

However, students can take advantage of the program extension provision once their limit is reached to extend their active status in the program. This involves registering for the Program Extension course through the registration process and paying the applicable fee. Students have a maximum of three consecutive semesters (fall or spring) over which they can pay the program extension fee in order to maintain their active status in the program.

Failure to complete the program in six academic years will result in students being charged an over limit fee for each semester they exceed the program limit up to three semesters. In cases where students exceed the program limit of 6 academic years, or exceed the three-additional semester limit, the Graduate Studies administration may require them to retake any or all courses in the program to graduate and continue to pay the over-limit fee per semester.

The MABC program can be completed in two to four years, but the length of time a student takes to complete it may depend on the student's own schedule and external commitments, as well as course offerings that are dependent on minimum enrollment, instructor availability, and the program's semester schedule. Typically, students complete their coursework over a two-to-three-year period and complete their internship and research in one additional year.
