

Campus Evacuation

The Master's University approaches evacuation with a focus on early preparation, clear communication, and decisive action. Our campus community is safest when students, faculty, and staff understand that evacuation is a shared responsibility and take steps to prepare before an emergency occurs. Because emergencies can develop quickly and evacuation routes may become congested, we emphasize being informed, having a plan, helping one another, and acting promptly when directed to leave. The Ready, Set, Go framework provides a simple, common approach that helps our campus move from preparedness to action while prioritizing the safety of our entire community.

Ready (Prepare Now)

Ready means taking simple steps now to ensure that you are prepared to evacuate quickly and safely when an emergency occurs.

- Stay Informed with Mustang Alert.
- Check local fire information like the Watch Duty app.
- Prepare a “Go Bag” with important items that you can grab quickly.
- Identify a designated evacuation location safely away from campus.
- Make a rideshare plan to reduce the number of vehicles on the road.
 - Know your ride
 - Fill every seat
 - Leave together
- Know your evacuation routes and plan

Set (Prepare to leave)

Set means staying alert, finalizing your plans, and being ready to evacuate without delay.

- Pay close attention to Mustang Alert and other official emergency information feeds.
- Gather your Go Bag and other essential items.
- Secure your room, office, or work area if time allows.
- Confirm your transportation plan “TMU Ride Ready”
- Confirm your designated evacuation point.
- Be prepared to leave immediately if a GO order is issued.

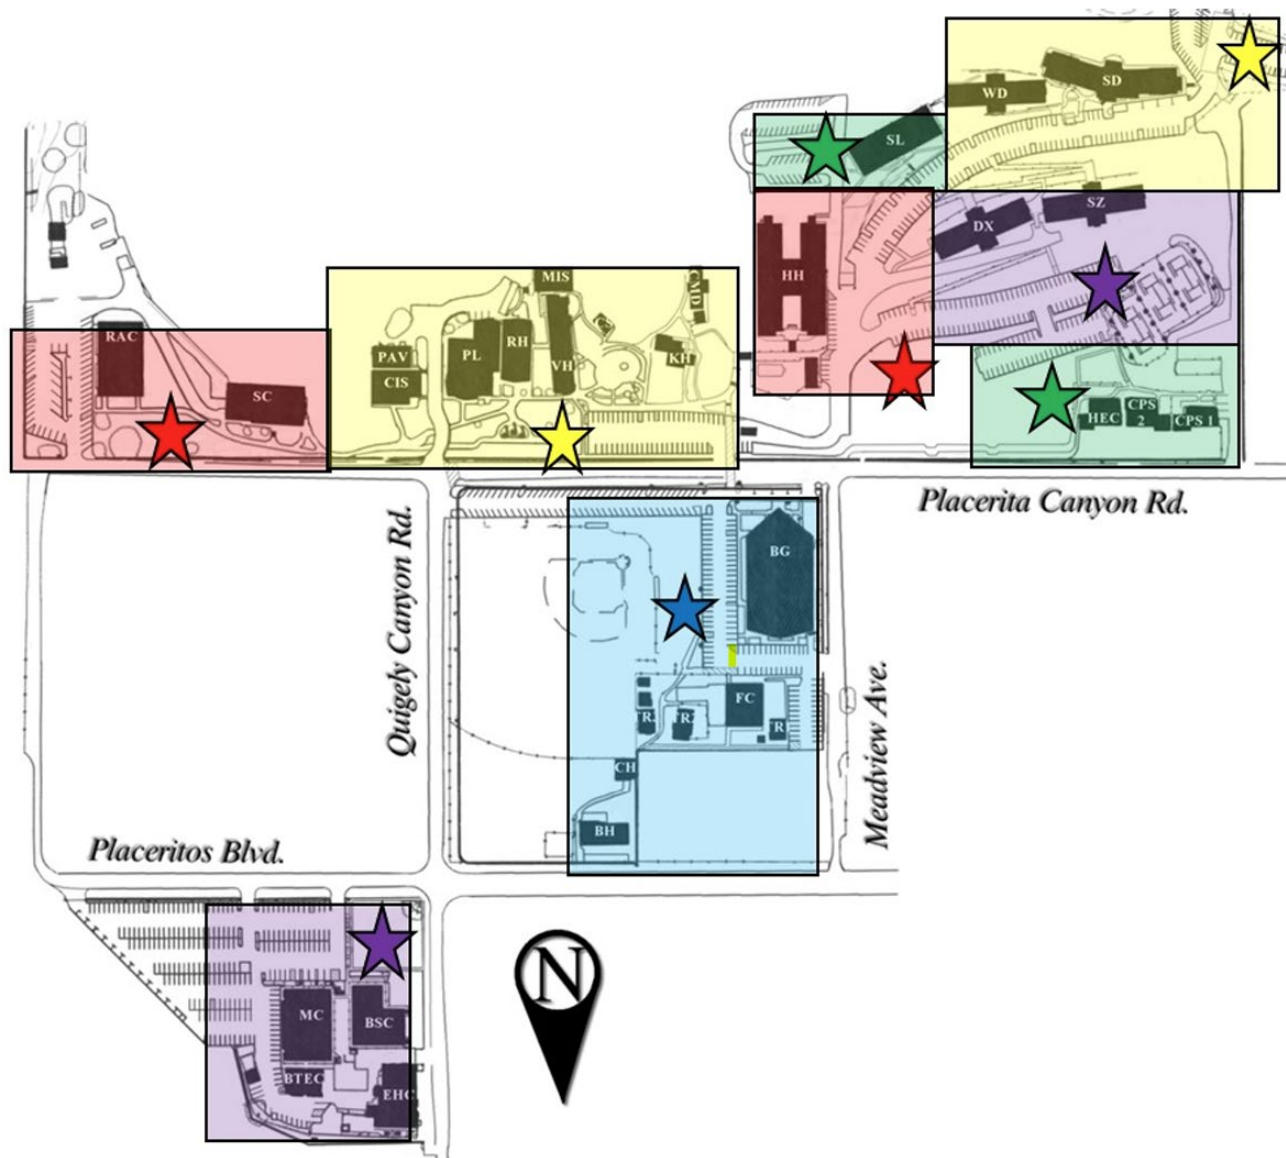

GO (Leave Immediately)

GO means leave immediately—your safety and the safety of others depend on timely action and orderly evacuation.

- Leave immediately when directed to evacuate.
- Do not delay to gather unnecessary belongings.
- Follow designated evacuation routes.
- Follow directions from emergency personnel and University officials.
- Travel to your designated evacuation point or other approved location.
- DO NOT return to campus until you are directed to do so.
- Remember: A GO order may be issued without a prior SET notification.
- When you reach a safe location away from campus, check in with your supervisor, RD, or RA to let them know you are safe.

Local Campus Building Evacuation

When individual buildings need to be evacuated, everyone in that building should meet at the designated evacuation location for that area. The following map shows the location for each area of campus. Each building has a designated Building Safety Officer who may provide direction and assistance if the building is to be evacuated.

All-Campus Evacuation On Campus

Should an evacuation of on-campus buildings be necessary, the Baseball Field will serve as the primary rally point. The North Campus Parking Lot will serve as the secondary rally point if the primary location cannot be used.

Once assembled, staff and faculty will line up by department, while students will line up by their living group, including residence halls, Canyon homes, and off-campus students, to assist with accountability. Further instructions and directions will be provided at the rally point.

In the event an evacuation from campus is necessary, students, faculty, and staff should proceed to their pre-designated safe location whenever possible. If you do not already have a designated location to go to, The Master's University may direct evacuees to an off-campus location such as Grace Baptist Church, Crossroads Community Church, or Grace Community Church. Instructions will be provided through Mustang Alert based on the circumstances of the Emergency.

If a GO evacuation order is issued, leave immediately. DO NOT wait for additional instructions before beginning your evacuation.

TMU “Ride Ready”

Evacuation traffic can quickly become congested, particularly when there are limited routes away from campus. TMU Ride Ready is our approach to helping students, faculty, and staff evacuate efficiently by encouraging everyone to plan for transportation before an emergency occurs.

- Know Your Ride — If you drive, know your evacuation route and be prepared to leave when directed. If you do not drive, identify a “riding buddy”—a friend, roommate, coworker, or staff member who can provide transportation during an evacuation.
- Fill Every Seat — If you have a vehicle, offer available seats to others who need transportation. Every empty seat is another car on the road, increasing congestion and slowing the evacuation.
- Leave Together — When a GO evacuation order is issued, leave immediately and travel together whenever possible. Do not wait for everyone to find their own vehicle. Coordinate with your riding buddy and head to your designated safe location.

TMU Ride Ready is about looking out for one another. By sharing rides and filling available seats, we can reduce the number of vehicles on the road, ease congestion, and help our campus community evacuate more safely and efficiently.
